

Give some due consideration to the matters at hand,

Where life can be magic and the treasures so grand;

Of course time is money in the world that goes round,

Maybe consideration is meaning things above ground.

Then again you could consider life as free and easy,

Where winds blow a course and at times a bit breezy;

And consideration can be a sum or amount to decide,

In the time that it takes and what is given to reside.

There's the thought that means to peruse and think,

And this requires time to ponder, meditate and link;

Considerations a way to know things, share and care,

The effort to appreciate the heart of others who dare.

Considerations showing kindness to those who need,

For leaders and readers who to others will do feed;

Or doing unto others what they need to get on by,

In order for those others to live who are unable to try.

It's to spare a careful thought to those who you meet,

To show gratitude and love for someone else to eat;

It is like thinking of a way to be nice and to savour,

The grace that's a free gift of God's unmerited favour.

Consideration is not just having a good guess at it all,

But careful distinguishing of being at work or on call;

Consideration can be fair if it honours both sides,

In hope, faith and love is where consideration abides.

Me before you?
