

A thousand litres of water each one a thousand mils,

A country's or nation's economy, of a thousand bills;

A trillion beats of life to pay the grey way of the day,

A trillion tonnes in cities buildings to weigh and stay.

A trillion in income taxes from people, who can earn,

A trillion in government to invest in learning and turn;

A trillion in banks and coffers to go to various needs,

A trillion indisposed for explanation in leads or reads.

A trillion leaves in forests that fall or stay on trees,

A trillion pieces of paper to bring us to bended knees;

A trillion thoughts of God from earth to heaven above,

A trillion living organisms, the joy of life and love.

A trillion in the atmosphere for someone to explain,

A trillion in atoms and molecules simply in existence;

A trillion on watches, in the second hands of time,

A trillion views and sights, seeing different things.

A trillion in currency, news happens around the earth,

A trillion in all the fashion, a year and passion worth;

A trillion in food to be consumed all around the world,

A trillion in drinks to complement or compare words.

A trillion in the print and ink along the lines in books,

A trillion in the blood of many people's different looks;

A trillion being wasted on killing in a senseless war,

A trillion in pills and medicine, sure of need and law.
