

It seems to me that domination is getting your own way,

In your travels and business and the general course of the day;

I know if I go my own way I think I will always win,

But I know unless I follow someone else I am likely to sin.

So the best thing I can do as far as domination is concerned,

Is to study and read and try to understand all the things I've learned;

To earn the right to lead and be a good example to others,

To teach loving kindness to all of my sisters and brothers.

Domination is sometimes like being in a superiority kick,

Where the first is the last one and the slow is the quick;

And the smarter are patient for they will wait for the right time,

When they lead a nation and domination not a crime but the prime.

Like the president is the chief resident over all of the land.

And is governing and leading by the book in his hand;

Like the strong are the quick and slow are the weak,

And the pick the wrong and write the right like the left week.

Now at the end of the day the beauty overcomes us all,

When the woman and man are equal and God's made his call;

As the year comes and goes and all the month will pass by,

The leader still stands if he's done the right thing with the try.

The domination plays its course but the survival of the fittest,

Where genes and the type of animal fight like the thinnest and fastest;

For the balance is not in the killing but being the most stable,

Where God's design is the greatest and the money just a label.

Signed,

I report to you
