

Well all is relevant in the world of trouble and fair game,

Where the pertinence is the mediator and the formality of fame;

The pertinence of Parsifal is then relative to the reality,

Of what is realistic and what goes on and happens actually.

One could say, well Parsifal needs this word and not the grail,

The other would say that without pen and book he will fail;

While still someone else will ask for the armor of God,

Where Parsifal and salvation are questioning pertinence as odd.

So what is it all pertaining to, Why am I going through all this,

Isn't it better to settle down with a wife and a big kiss;

And what is really real truly at the end of the each day,

Is it blowing a gale or are you obliged to rain and way.

And who is the reign and what is the weigh of the say,

When it's all said and done you're the sun of a light ray;

And the hugh and the paint are a pretty rich picture,

Where the print and the fame are pertinent to pick richer.

And the buck comes and goes and returns to the owner,

When each copy is sold and the coming is a real groaner;

So the author has to take his chance with the luck of the reader,

For he has the rights and people who read think the leader.

So understand now the pertinence of the Parsifal and haroman ?

When the crowns is upon him and the whole kingdom his own;

For king he might be and to think the right thing to say,

For a knight must become knighted by the king in the day.

Signed,

Time for Rhyme