

We need to conserve a lot of things and all is conservation,

Like saving energy for later when running a reservation in conversation;

And we all consume a lot of things and theres always food upon the table,

But remember God gave everything got us to et conservation more stable,

Conservation is like saving souls and having plenty of money in the bank,

For you can withdraw on it later for a long time to love and thank;

But resources are running out and unless we use conservation they'll all be gone,

And for over future generations we will have to recycle all the more for one.

Now I'm conserving some of my thoughts and I am in a bit of a jam,

That my finger is in the wall and it's very hard plugging up the dam;

For most of us tend to spend nearly everything we seem to get,

And conservation is far too hard so we all have a little easy bet.

Well I know it is not that easy to put away something for the future,

Because spending what you get seems to be the thing to do your duty;

And we need to learn the art of conservation and how to nurture nature,

For the ecology of the environment is the creation of conservation's beauty.

So if in life you can have all now, remember conservation.

Because it is good to put a little away and have a nest egg continually;

And the birds come and go and breed in the breeze so very easily,

But with human beings it is selfish people who use conservation sleazily.

Now I guess we must remember all the good conservation does,

As it leaves something for someone else when life pulls on earth it's others;

And the generations come and the generations go like we all fo know,

But with conservation there is something left for ourselves to learn to grow.

Signed,

Beautiful Harvest
