

Don't dwell in despair in the depths of deep darkness,

Or aim for the things that will fill you with sorrow and care;

Don't be negative and pessimistic that brings worry and problems,

But look to the good things of life and don't dwell in despair.

Don't dwell in despair where night torments and mistreats you,

But look up to God in the heavenly sky who shines down;

Don't fill out heart with agony and anxiety but love life,

And live filled with blessing from value and what's worth.

Don't be down hearted and downtrodden to dwell in despair,

But love one another and help each other to serve and to care;

Don't be a misguider and troubler but look to the God being fair,

Don't dwell in despair single handed alone with yourself and no prayer.

Don't look for the dark side of life where your mistreated,

But greet life with passion and favour and breathe fresh air;

Don't dwell in despair where all is miserable and brings strife,

But lift up you head and have pride in victorious life.

Don't imagine that people are out to get you to harm you,

But do right and teach others to love and to learn to stay true;

Don't dwell in despair and the doldrums for life is what you can learn,

Lift up your hands to your maker and accept the challenge to earn.

Don't dwell in the depths of despair where sinners are lost down in hell,

But create for yourself a future where holiness lives by the bell;

Don't dwell in the depths of despair with hurting and suffering pain,

But look to the grace that God gives you and happily paradise remain.
