I Believe

I believe that out there in world about, There is love to be found you cannot doubt; I believe that if I pray to God, He'll hear every word and grant what I want.

I believe that people are basically good at heart, In fact they're intelligent and clever and smart; I believe that seasons change according to the time, And that through our love of Jesus Christ God's in every line.

I believe that faith is special and God leads me to the end, And that there's Grace and mercy and a right to make a friend; I believe that God is love and wants to see me married, And I believe in eternal salvation and all my sins are carried

I believe in heave above all I cannot see, And I believe in magic and only being me; I believe in everything and everyone that's passed, And I believe of all I brotherhood something that will last.

I believe in life and death and seeing being in nature, And believe in standing tall and that man should show his stature; I believe in finding love in anything at all, And I'll believe it's time to go when God has made his call.

I believe in making sense when all seems wrong and silly, And I believe in crying in private over something willy nilly; And I believe that there's paradise when all is dark and dim, And I believe in forgiveness and turning back to him. I believe there's someone special for each and every one of us, And is found in opposition to causing trouble and fuss; I believe that when I go to bed at night, The love between the sheets is part and is right.

I believe a blade of grass was made, And will be part of a glen and glade; I believe in crystal clear water in the streams, And I believe in drinking it and it turning into dreams.

I believe starting again and looking at each and everything a new, And I believe that romance when God designed will always come true; I believe in lonely nights and walks along the beach, And I believe that in denying God is only trying to teach.

I believe if I believe I will see the truth, And I believe there is every reason and every living proof; I believe in many things and many more I knew, But most of all I believe in someone else and that someone else is you.

Signed,

Parsifal
