

So what of the man who is down on his luck,
Should he be sad when he bats for a duck;
Or choose to be happy and not gamble at all,
When life's on the stake and all are at call.

Luck is what happens to those who believe,
That they know what's right and will really receive;
Some say their just lucky and glad to be active,
But other need more than that to mearily survive.

Much is to say about having a bet,
When you think of the money and what you will get;
But really it's happiness we need in this life,
Like finding a friend or marrying your wife.

Now I say that luck is due all the time,
Like staying in love and not committing a crime;
You never know what's install for yourself,
If you really on your luck and not sit on the shelf.
