

O lord my love,
Where are thou love;
My love, Oh Lord,
Has though forgotten my love,

I took you out to dinner one night,
And sat there all alone;
You walked into the restaurant,
And I was then not on my own.

You had a smile deserving compliment,
You have a heart of fire;
You walked into my life that night,
And I found out all I did desire.

I looked into your eyes y sweet,
And there your eyes met mine;
It must of been the master,
Because you turned my heart from iron.

I melted there right down for naught,
And you caught my heart with yours;
I was bought and sold on it,
It was no longer my heart but yours.

Then you took me by the hand,
And led me along the path;
The golden path of righteousness,
Beneath the lights, Oh Lord.

Signed,

Me to you

Parsifal In Love

My life, My love, My everything,
Belonged to me no more;
For when you said you play for keep
It was the lord for yours,

So perfectly we walked away,
To the chapel to be wed;
Beneath the stars romantically
We exchanged our vows for good.

I now no longer wonder aimlessly,
But my love lives within your heart;
That when we said I love you,
It was till eternity from the start.

Signed,

My Darling Forever
