

Now is the time, as this moment comes around,
To express my ideas of what I have found;
You must stay in tune as the situation arises,
As opportunities are always just full of surprises.

They come like the wind and are gone just as quick,
So sieze them and use them at each heart beat trick;
Their wonderful to find and will seldom disappoint,
As long as you action them and make clear their point.

I know that my options are now best left open,
As opportunities supply me a chance and something to cope then;
Times are sometimes tough and people are left useless,
But with an opportunity you have time to fix your mess.

So what if we use our possibilities and take up our chances,
Opportunities are the source to supply all our answers;
I must now leave here as the opportunity arrives,
And seek forth the fruit with which leads all our lives.

Signed

Taken for granted