

Any fool can pick things, have you ever tried,
Pick on any fool and you would rather that you cried;
A fool can be sick and so pick on any fool,
And don't fool yourself forever because that can be the thick.

Pick on any fool if you dare, but any fool could pick,
If a fool picks a pack, any fools a fool;
If you fool with any pick, every pick will fool,
So never pick a fool or the fool will turn and pick.

If a pick in meant to fool then never fool with picks,
And if a pick begins to fool, don't fool with any pick;
If a pick, is not a fool, you will pick and be fooled,
Until the fool is picked then the fool will be fooled by the pick.

When a fool is picked, the pick becomes the fool,
If you ever fail to pick, you'll be picked on by a fool;
When you've picked and picked and picked you become the fool,
And if now the pick is the fool you've really fooled them quick.

The trick to fool a fool, is pick and pick and pick,
Until the pick becomes the fool and fool is picked;
When you fool a pick the trick, the trick is to pick the tool,
So now the fool is picked the fool can take his pick.

Never pick a fool
