

I am sure of things I've got and want but don't know what else to get,

I want to get things that are meaningful but I've got a lot without debt;

And things which add up insurmountable have to be made accountable,

Like for when you're sum is able and valuable, rewards are got to be responsible.

Â

Now with many things all calculatable in the end are you ressurectable,

For with plenty of lovely beauty around things seem all commendable;

Like you sure of things I've got and want and buying more in recommendable,

But the Bible says too many things are unadvisable or retainable;

As when you have the knowledge of ownership you are relatable,

And the earth is big with many things containable to be creatable.

Â

So I am sure of the things I've got and want but with you it is debatable,

For I still have to get something I want so I've got everything attainable;

And you want things to add up and stay where they are being remainable,

But after life passes you lose everything and no one is blamable.

Â

Well if it all goes to God in the mighty heavens above it's arguable,

For it cost me hell on earth to collect everything that manageable;

And God knows he paid a whacking price for his own sustainable,

Like I have been charged a cost for everything I bought available.

Â

Now as you can see I am sure of the thing I've for unforsakeable,

And the things that I want I asked for in prayer a bit demandable;

So God grant me the rest of the things I want quite unrestrainable,

And a place for each place for the thing I want and have got for all the unsearchable.

Â

Signed,

Â

I'll find it all later
