

To rearrange and organize and put things in order,

Is like a country full of air that has water as a border;

Sort things out and organize them in the way they should be,

So that the right thing that's needed is plain for all to see.

Organization is a management principle making logic simple,

So things will appear to be highly intelligent and not sinful;

When you put things in their place it helps people to agree,

So as not to act irrationally about what looks a bit angry.

These little tasks are not much to ask but alleviate trouble,

So that when things get organized, order starts to double;

If you open your eyes to look clearly, to see what will appear,

So all those problems you worry about will really disappear.

Now if your product is manufactured right it usually will sell,

Like all of your body's organs are made from each living cell;

Once combined and organised makes people human beings,

As were all the trees near water in beautiful created scenes.

Organization amends itself in a totally natural kind of way,

As leadership excels itself throughout all and every day;

Now if you see it properly it communicates itself with grace,

While people have built property as you gaze out into space.

Now I think it is best to settle and organise things to please,

So as one can marry and get on with well and not tease;

Organization pays those who put others before themselves first,

And I'd hate to be the one whose thinking of myself as worst.

Signed,

It all works out.
