

It's a beautiful world in which we all do live,

With joy and peace and hope of love to give;

With colours all changing from blue to green and gold,

The sun still shining then till now of ages old and gone.

A cool drink of water or a swim in the pool,

Comes the luxury of wisdom from the old school;

And if you plan it you have got something to see,

On this earth aging planet we live on perfectly.

As I see it, there's beauty in nearly everything around,

So try to manage and keep your head above ground;

And in the distance it's paradise still left to come,

While we are still here evolving for all to have some.

And can it be that something could possibly go wrong,

In a poem that you're reading and or listening to a song;

It's not very likely but still we take it for granted,

Thinking that God has to answer the love that was planted.

With rolling hills and plains split by life flowing rivers,

The joy of life comes easily from cheerful loving givers;

When the purpose and meaning derive themselves together,

So as I see it, it's just another day of clearing weather.

Now it appears that there are two hearts beating as one,

Mixed and intermingled in the knowledge that they've won;

So glorious to understand that only God knows how and why,

For as I see it now, God lives eternally and never has to die.

Signed,

Holy matrimony.
